HEIR'S ARRIVAL CHEERS KING GEORGE

HOOVER DEATH PLOT DENIED IN BUENOS AIRES

Ruler Gravely Ill Physicians Inform Public

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(U.P.)—King George, lying gravely ill, tonight greeted his eldest son, the Prince of Wales, who had raced approximately 6000 miles from a hunting camp in an African jungle to his bedside.

The king immediately recognized the bronze-faced young man who entered his bedchamber on the third floor of Buckingham palace. His majesty had not been expecting the prince to reach London tonight—nine days and 12 hours after his departure from Dar-Es-Salaam, East African coast.

Immediately after the prince's visit to the sickroom had been announced, a statement issued at the palace said the king's condition had taken a slight change for the better. Grave anxiety for the king continued in official circles, it was said.

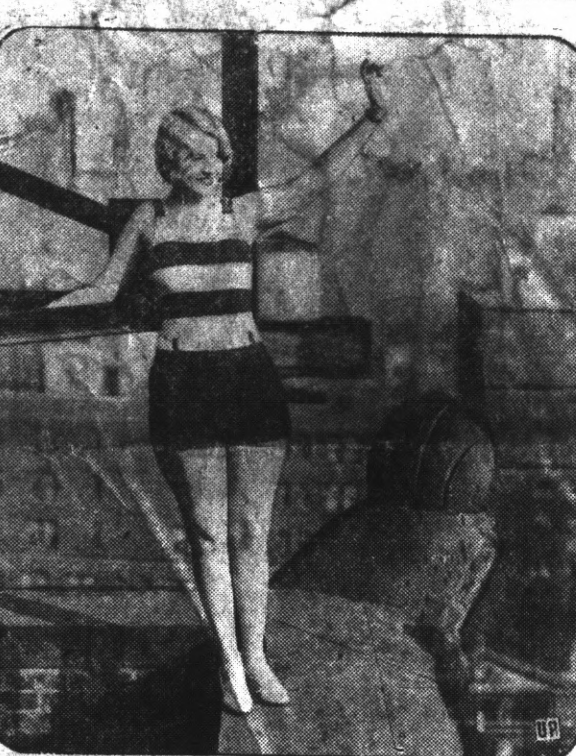

Fighting Gravely
The heir to the British throne found his father fighting bravely against the infection which threatened his life during the last three weeks. The lines of worry showed plainly on the prince's face as he entered Buckingham palace, after his record-breaking trip from Africa.

For an hour, while the crowds outside the gates watched the bright squares of night shining from the windows, the prince remained in the palace. When he left at 11:24 p. m. he was smiling.

The prince's smile as he left with the duke and duchess of York meant a great deal in increasing the courage of the crowd which

S A R STANDS FOR THE AMERICAN IDEALS

One of the organizations in the United States is the Sons of the American Revolution which is based on our Constitution and the fine traditions of the nation from its beginning. The first patriotic society of this sort was the Sons of Revolutionary Sires organized in San Francisco in 1857. Later on, in 1889, to be exact, the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution was formed and it has been growing steadily ever since.

An interesting story of the society, its purposes and ideals is contained in an article written for the current number of the National Republic by Frank B. Steele, secretary general of the organization. Writing of the purposes and ideals of the society, Mr. Steele says in part:

"The great underlying purposes of this organization are to perpetuate the memory and the spirit of the men who achieved American independence, and this purpose expresses itself in various activities, some of which deal primarily with the past as in the marking of historic spots and the preservation of documents and relics of individual Revolutionary soldiers and heroes and the identification of their graves and marking thereof; the encouragement of the results thereof, the erection of memorials and the like; but not these alone. It also believes and endeavors to work more and more for a ever-living, ever-growing patriotism, and to this end and to maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom and to carry out the purposes expressed in the preamble of the Constitution of the United States, which are among the purposes and objects of the society as expressed in its own constitution, it endeavors to encourage an enlightened public opinion by calling attention to improper and incorrect histories used in many public schools of the country and to foster the education of the youth of our land in the knowledge and study of the Constitution of the United States, to combat the growing carelessness as to the sturdy Americanism of the teachers of the youth of our public schools and to the upholding of legislation which will preserve, not tear down, the fabric so carefully planned by the founders of our government; to bring to the new and potential American from other lands a proper knowledge of our institutions and of his privilege and above all his responsibilities, by instituting classes in citizenship in congested communities; and in inculcating habits of good citizenship in the boys and girls of our public schools through the distribution of Good Citizenship medals to those who best typify the ideals of American citizenship; these and many more activities of an educational and patriotic character, the society is constantly and with ever increasing extent and energy sponsoring and emphasizing.

"To further such objects as the above, the society originated the observance of Elay Day on June 14, and the observance of Constitution Day on September 17. Both of these observances have been furthered and fostered by other societies until they have become nation-wide in scope and observance, and are rapidly coming to be almost national holidays. The campaign for fair and unbiased school histories has compelled a number of authors of those most severely criticised and their publishers to so revise their books as to bring them to more favorable consideration."

Mr. Raskob may have been only an efficient "wet" business man, but he rapidly learned to know his politics. For instance that time he sent a message of congratulations to the new "dry" democratic candidate for senator in Missouri.

What the poor workingman wants this year is not a full dinner pail but more parking places.

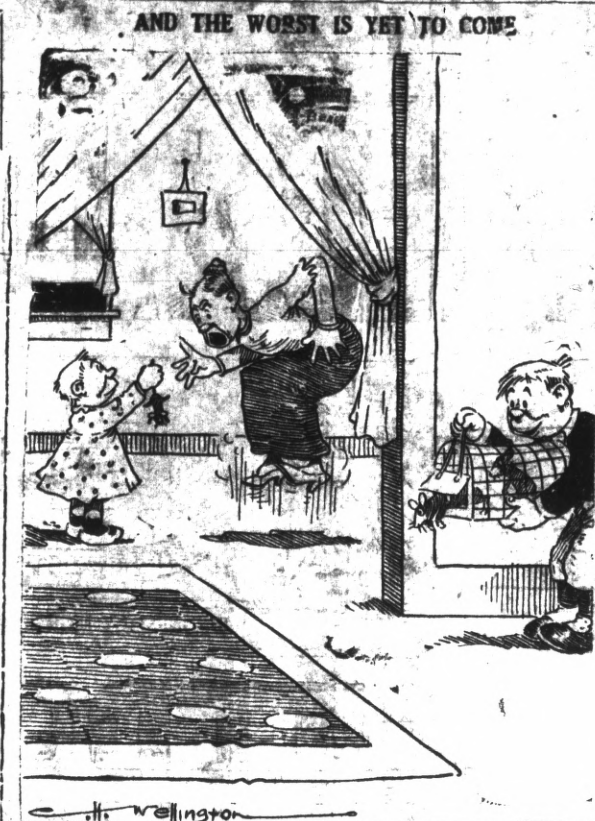

When asked whether he is wet or dry, the diplomatic candidate usually answered "yes and no."

What Shall I Wear?

Dear Jurdie
I am inspired to have a bustle gown and should like it to be taffeta. I wish to wear it at a wedding, that of my daughter. Brides' mothers seem to run grey, but is it traditional really?—Mother.
I sense that you are young enough to get away with the handicap of taffeta plus a bustle! You need no particular courage than

BEAUTY

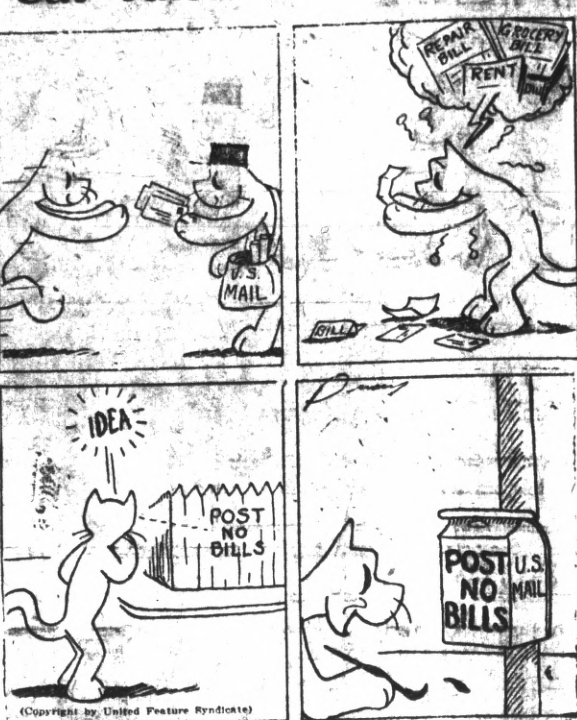

My Dear Miss Bauer:
The skin on my face has become dry and scaly and when I put powder on it makes my skin look worse than ever. Isn't there some way I can clear up this condition? Also I have very deep lines from my nostrils to the corners of my mouth which I would like to get rid of if you can suggest some way to help me.
—Stella T.

Obviously, your skin needs a good nourishing cream to supplement the cleansing cream you are using now. For of course, with skin like yours it would be very wise to use soap and water for cleansing and you should depend entirely on a cleansing cream. Every night after you have cleansed your face, put in a rich skin food (most of the well-known beauty specialists make a heavy cream, designed particularly for dry and sensitive skins), with a patting, patting, but vigorously enough to bring the blood to the surface. Leave the cream on overnight and, in the morning, remove it with a milk skin-tone and as-to make it grey, especially since the model illustrated is grey with flame colored flowers, blurred in outline as so many figured taffetas are apt to be. The bustle, off centre as is the way of modern bustles, relies on the crispness of the silk for its silhouette. Of course the taffeta need not be figured, but in that case do not choose grey, rather blue, red or even a brilliant purple.

Yours for style,
JUDIE

COLLEEN GIVEN

Strong in the conviction that a star of Colleen Moore's ability merits the finest supporting cast available, John McCormick, producer of "Happiness Ahead" in which Miss Moore is appearing at the Richmond theatre, gathered an unusually well-balanced group of players for this First National picture.

In the dominating role, Miss Moore asserts pure comedy for a portrayal demanding a greater depth of dramatic expression and has received universal commendation for her work. Although "Happiness Ahead" includes frequent humorous scenes, the story is basically far more dramatic than those in which she has been starred of late.

One of the most difficult roles to fill was that of the masculine lead, for which numerous young actors were given screen tests by the director, William A. Seiter. The part required more than the usual ability as the character changes drastically during the progress of the story. McCormick finally selected Edmund Lowe.

Lillian Tashman, whose speciality is the enacting of emotion roles, was awarded the most conspicuous feminine portrayal among the supporting players, that of a girl of New York's underworld, who becomes strangely involved in the life of the central character.

Again appearing in character as a lovable mother, Edythe Chapman is ideally suited for her part in "Happiness Ahead" as Miss Moore's mother.

'TEMPEST' HAS
BARRYMORE

"Tempest," the new John Barrymore picture for United Artists which will open at the California theatre today, represents the largest theatrical outlay, the longest production schedule and the greatest striving for popular entertainment in the famous star's screen career.

Tempest incidentally answers the plea of thousands of Barrymore's admirers for a picture in a modern setting. After a series of big costume pictures, in which he played romantic characters of hundreds of years ago, Barrymore and his United Artists associates yielded to popular demand and filmed a modern story—a stage of twentieth-century Russia.

In "Tempest," the screen and stage star has the role of a devil may-care subaltern whose affairs of the heart and sword lead him into some of the strangest adventures of the revolution, which event out of grand duels and rulers out of peasantism. The early part of "Tempest" depicts all the pomp and luxury of the empire, with the revolution comes the most gripping picture of the day.

Barrymore, as a peasant officer who loves princesses, is supported by a cast of hundreds, the principals of which are Louis Wolheim, Camilla Horn, the German star, who came to this country to become Barrymore's leading lady; George Fawcett, Ulrich Haupt, Boris de Pas, who also came to America from Europe especially to appear with Barrymore; Lena Malena and Albert Conti.

SYNOPSIS
Dr. Davis and his wife, Mary, have been quarreling. Davis is jealous of Beranger de Brie, a perfume manufacturer, and Mary is jealous of Myra Pfeffer, an artist. They have just made up when Davis receives a supposedly professional call. He finds Myra in a restaurant, pretending illness. He believes her story and takes her home. On opening the door for her he thoughtlessly pockets the key. Mary, becoming suspicious, follows him and sees him with Myra. She gets Beranger and they go to a cabaret, from where she telephones Myra's apartment and tells her husband her whereabouts and says that she is with a man.

"I wouldn't bother about that now, Dr. Davis," Mary purred. "So far as I'm concerned, you have nothing more to do with my life. The sky's the limit for me. I'm not coming home tonight—or tomorrow night—or any night! I'm through!"

The click of a receiver vibrated in Davis's ear. He worked the holder up and down feverishly, but only a dull, buzzing sound resulted. "She's cut off," he muttered. "The Dead Rat! Where's the Dead Rat?" he turned to Myra.

"Over on Blumber Street," Myra informed him, laughing. She had placed the conversation together.

"Everybody change partners," and she knew just about what had happened. "It's only a little while from here—just a few minutes' drive."

"Thanks," Davis returned, starting for the door. "Oh, but you're not going now—why, you're just beginning to get acquainted," she purred. "If your wife's out with someone else, you might just as well stay here."

"Stay here, huh?" Davis shouted. "I've been here too long!" He wrenched himself free, pushing the girl aside, and rushed out into the hallway and took the steps two at a time.

Myra watched his flight, stiff shoulders and turned to close the door. Then suddenly she remembered the key—he had her front door key still in his pocket. She stood for a moment, tapping her foot thoughtfully, her tongue in her cheek. Then she laughed again. The Dead Rat! Well, she'd show Ed Davis. She seized her hat, scanned her face in the mirror and renewed her powder and lipstick. Then she ran out and down the steps, still laughing.

CHAPTER XI
At a small table wedged in between other equally small tables sat Beranger gazing idly about the room. The Dead Rat was crowded. The air hung heavy with smoke. A jazz band blared a ragged tune. Scuffling, shuffling feet, writhing bodies, bobbing heads, shook the floor. The painted walls shivered. High laughter, loud words, gasping voices rose and fell in a mad, mad competition with the orchestra.

Beranger regarded the seething crowd of people, all trying to dance on a space of bare floor which would have been inadequate to hold them all comfortably standing still. He glanced glumly at the over-ruffled flappers with their hard, bright eyes and their too-painted mouths. His nose elevated itself at the sight of broad-shouldered college boys. He felt more kindly towards the group at a large, corner table where short-haired women and long-haired men talked at the tops of their lungs and gesticulated fluently, punctuated log their remarks with hectic hand-wavings and expressive eyebrow-lifting.

He got up from his chair and stood as he saw Mary Davis threaten her way back to the table, moving along the side-lines of the dancing mass formation.

"Did you hear—did he?" Beranger questioned as Mary dropped into the vacant seat beside him.

"Find him?" "I most certainly did," Mary answered, her eyes flashing. "I found him just where I expected to find him."

"With Miss Pfeffer?"

"Yes." Mary returned shortly. She was furious with Ed—not only jealous, but angry—angry at the thought that he could leave her so shortly after their marriage. Angry at herself for not being able to make him forget this girl. But she had told him a thing or two, she reminded herself. She wouldn't let him get away with that sort of thing without letting him know that she, too, had certain ideas on the subject.

"Did you tell him where you were?" Beranger settled himself again.

"I most certainly did—and I told him I was with a man. He almost exploded." She laughed at the remembrance of Ed's voice and his horrified tones.

"My dear, you—you didn't tell him," Beranger said with meekness. "You said you were with a man. He almost exploded." She laughed at the remembrance of Ed's voice and his horrified tones.

"You were quite right," Beranger approved. "And I'm glad that you came to me to help you."

"Well, it was a very kind of you to do all this for me," Mary returned. "I don't know what I'd have done without you. I couldn't have come to a place like this by myself—and I felt that the best way of showing Ed Davis that I meant what I said was to marry you. I mean, I said I was going to marry you. And I'm glad, now, I did. This is fun, you know. Ed and I've been staying in too much, I think, I like this."

May looked around the room at the laughing, chattering couples and parties. "I don't know what I'd have done if you hadn't been here," she turned to Beranger. "How did you know about this place?"

"Oh, I know most of the places around here," Beranger answered jauntily. "I come here once in a while, but—"

"The blare of the orchestra drowned out his remarks."

"Oh, come on, my dear," Mary jumped up, catching Beranger's hand, pulling him to his feet.

"The perfume manufacturer gazed at the crowded floor a little uneasily, but Mary was holding out her arms and there was nothing to do but make the best of it."

Into the seething mob they went, trying to make some headway around the dance floor. Protruding elbows jabbed their sides. Hands brushed their faces. Heavy heels trod on their toes. Beranger winced with pain as a woman's spike heel came down on his instep. Other couples turned to look at them. Some smiled and frowned. Others made a pretense of holding their noses. The heat and the close quarters were bringing out all these conglomerate smells that clung persistently and heavily to Beranger. He caught their untidy glances, and he was annoyed.

But Mary danced on, unconscious of the stir they were creating. She had never been in a place like this before, and she was highly amused. It was all novel, original, so many strange looking people. Not at all like a night club where everybody looked like everybody else, and where everything seemed more formal and staid.

The orchestra stopped suddenly, moment for silence. "Now boys and girls," he shouted, drawing out the blare of the crowd. "Now, boys and girls, we're going to have a get-together dance. We have the lights so out, everybody change partners." A burst of applause greeted his announcement. "And no cheating, remember!" he called out.

Pair Dismissed
At Hearing In Justice Court

Following a preliminary hearing yesterday morning in the court of Justice of the Peace Arthur A. Alstrom, statutory charges against George Galloway and Mrs. Lena Schmidt were dismissed on the grounds of insufficient evidence. The couple was arrested last month in a raid on their asserted "love nest."

The "love nest" angle of the case failed to materialize yesterday when Galloway testified that he had employed Mrs. Schmidt, his sister-in-law, as housekeeper at a monthly salary of $25.

Mrs. Galloway, who swore to the complaint which caused the arrest of the couple, testified on the stand that she was satisfied the facts in the case were different from those that led her to make the complaint and that both couples, the Galloways and Schmitts, had been reconciled.

Schmidt, who was also present, showed no inclination to press the charges against his wife and his brother-in-law.

J. E. Rogers, attorney for the plaintiffs, maintained that no evidence of a convicting nature had been produced against the couple and asked for a dismissal of the charges.

Deputy District Attorney Hiram E. Jacobs opposed the dismissal and intimated that perjury charges might be filed against certain principals in the case.

POSTMASTER URGES EARLY MAILING

There will be no mail deliveries on Christmas Day so Richmond persons desiring to have their packages arrive in time are urged to mail them early, according to Postmaster J. N. Long.

"Every effort will be made to handle the Christmas mails with out congestion and delay," Long said, "but owing to the enormous volume this can be done only with the cooperation of the public."

The following suggestions were made by Long for those mailing packages:

All packages must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Strong Boxes

Candies must be inclosed in strong outside boxes or containers.

Wrap cut flowers with tissue to insure moisture and place in strong suitable boxes of wood tin or corrugated cardboard.

Articles easily broken must be carefully packed, crated or secured with padding. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, tissue waste or like materials in, around and between the articles and outside the container.

Glassware, pottery, fragile toys or crockery must be packed so that in case the articles are broken in transit the pieces will not protrude, damaging other boxes.

Must Be Marked

All articles easily broken must be marked "fragile." Use special delivery stamps for articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation. This will expedite delivery. All such articles must be marked "perishable."

Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. The required amount of postage should be affixed in the upper right corner. Full information concerning postage rates can be obtained at the stamp or parcel post window.

Complete Address

All addresses should be complete with house number and name of street, post office or rural route number. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

year, 167 were installed during the ten months, giving the city a total of 1413 telephones.

Concord is a close third with a total percentage of 5.25. During the period 25 new telephones were installed, making a total of 501 phones for that community.

Crockett, with 4.24 percent, is fourth. A total of 32 new phones were installed making the total installation 769 telephones.

With a percentage of 2.78, Antioch is fifth. Fourteen phones were installed for a total of 513 telephones.

Richmond, in percentage, is rated sixth.

The percentage figures were tabulated on the per capita basis.

holiday time increases approximately 200 percent. Long, stability is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days.

Therefore to assure delivery of Christmas presents, cards, and letters by Christmas Day, the public should shop and mail early. Packages and letters should be ready for mailing at least two weeks or 10 days before Christmas, depending upon the distance.

By actual figures Richmond leads the list in the number of telephones installed during the period. Martinez is second with 107; Pittsburg is third with 91; Crockett is fourth with 32; Concord is fifth with 24 and Antioch sixth with 14.

WATER BOARD TO MAINTAIN OFFICE HERE

The first water bills to the public from the East Bay Municipal Utility district went to the mail yesterday signaling the beginning of municipal operation of the local water plant which was purchased from the East Bay Water company on Saturday.

Six thousand bills went into the mail and this number will continue to be mailed each day in the future. Owing to the bulk of business which involves over 180,000 meters, serving 200,000 persons, it is impossible to mail all bills on any given date, so the mailing is done serially throughout the month at the rate of 6000 a day.

The Utility district will continue to operate the business office on Sixteenth street and the three outside offices in Richmond, Alameda and Berkeley, it was announced by Dr. George C. Pardee, president. Bills can be paid over the counter or by mail as was the rule with the East Bay Water company. No immediate change in the service or method of paying bills will be noticed by the people under the municipal ownership operation plan.

New Bill Heads

All necessary printing of bills for receipts was taken care of prior to the consummation of the purchase on Saturday, so that water consumers' receipts and bills received from now on will bear the name of the East Bay Municipal Utility district instead of the East Bay Water company.

Necessary steps will be taken at once to change the signs on all office windows and the lettering on all vehicles.

F. W. Hanna, acting chief engineer, in the absence of Arthur P. Davis, took up his headquarters today at the Sixteenth street office in Oakland. Until the return of Davis, Hanna will function as chief engineer and general manager, occupying the same position as formerly occupied by the chief engineer and general manager of the Water company.

Officials to Aid

Water company officials, including Wilhelm and E. O. Edgerton, president, signified their intention of giving the Utility district the fullest cooperation in operating the works during the early stages. Wilhelm, Edgerton and the engineering staff will remain at the Oakland office to assist in these details.

Dr. Pardee, Davis, John H. Kimball, accountant and ex-officio secretary and other executives will occupy the executive offices on the second floor of the Sixteenth street building. The engineering staff of the district will move into rooms on the third floor, formerly occupied by the Water company's engineering staff. Meetings of the board will be held in the large board room on the second floor which has always served as a directors room for the privately owned company. The next meeting of the Utility district, however, will be held at the old headquarters in the Ray building at Nineteenth and Broadway, which the district has not as yet vacated. The Ray building offices will continue to be occupied by a large part of the Utility district workers until about the first of the year, it was said.

One of Largest

The purchase of the East Bay Water company by the East Bay Municipal Utility district marks the passing into public hands of one of the last large privately owned water companies in the U. S. The private company in Minneapolis is the only one of importance in the U. S. which still remains outside the public ownership fold.

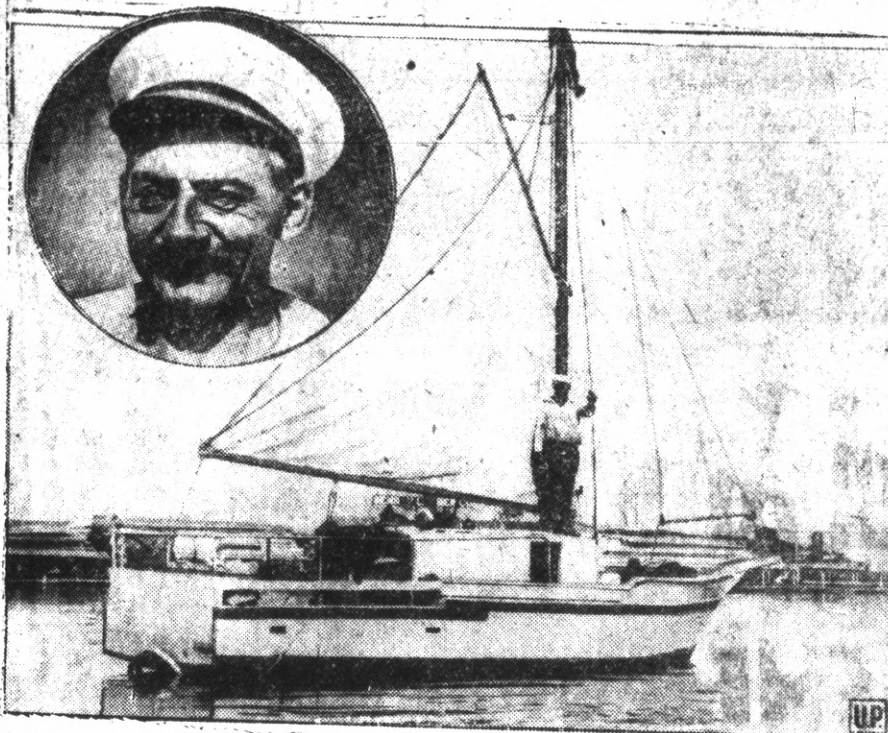

The local water system serves more population, has more consumers and is a larger company than the Spring Valley and is the second largest one in California, being exceeded in size only by the plant in Los Angeles, which serves one million population. Purchase of the private company completes the program of municipal ownership which was aimed at when the Utility district was formed five and a half years ago. Its ownership gives the Utility district an income of $4,500,000 a year, whereas, heretofore, the district was operated without any income except from taxes.

JACKSON PLEA OF GUILTY ENTERED

mentation of life imprisonment was made by District Attorney A. B. Tinning. A complete report on the case with Jackson's previous record will be presented to Judge McKenzie this morning by the district attorney's office. If after a study of this report Judge McKenzie finds that he cannot reduce the sentence to a life term, Jackson will be permitted to withdraw his plea of "guilty" and stand trial before a jury.

Jackson Anxious

According to Tinning, Jackson has expressed a desire for some time to appear in court "and have it all over with." A few days ago he was removed to the county jail from the county hospital where he has been under guard suffering with a severe wound inflicted on his left wrist in a suicide attempt. The slaying of the wife followed the slaying of Mrs. Howson, Jackson admitted in a confession to Chief of Police Dan Cox of Richmond.

Following his arrest by Chief of Police Cox and Patrolman I. W. Grimes at Tewksbury and Standard avenue two days after the finding of Mrs. Howson's body beneath a canvas beside Jackson's abandoned car on the Winchester road near the Shrimp camp, Jackson admitted a portion of the crime but insisted that the remainder of the time his mind was blank.

No Comment Made

He refused to make any comment when he appeared in court yesterday afternoon. His appearance before Judge McKenzie and plea of guilty was over in less than three minutes. He was without an attorney and declared he wanted none.

The flight slaying of Mrs. Howson, mother of four children was revealed on Monday morning Nov. 12 when Traffic Officer Eddie Baker found the body of Mrs. Howson beside Jackson's car. A hammer with which Jackson later admitted he had struck Mrs. Howson was beside the body with the handle broken. Nearby lay the empty box of a razor with which the woman had been nearly decapitated by her enraged slayer. Jackson's clothing which he had worn when he left the Howson home presumably for a ride some time before was found, blood-stained, in the auto.

Previous Slaying

With a record of a previous killing behind him, police immediately accused Jackson of the crime and started a search for him. On Tuesday morning, Nov. 13, the slayer's trail was picked up in an abandoned house in Winehaven. There in a front room in a pool of blood Chief Cox and representatives from the sheriff's office found the razor blade with which Jackson had slashed the woman and later tried to end his own life.

That night Jackson dressed in the garb of a woodsman and pelted by a heavy rain was seen wandering along the street by Chief Cox and Grimes. Taken to the police station he collapsed from starvation and loss of blood. His slashed arm had been rudely dressed in a piece of old blanket found in the abandoned Winehaven house.

been requested to attend an "influenza conference" in Dr. Kegel's office today, were unable to be present because they could not spare the time away from patients suffering with the disease.

In the past three days, 136 new cases were reported here, five of which were fatal. Dr. Kegel, while not recognizing that an epidemic exists in the city at the present time, announced a country-wide survey would be made and suggested means of keeping influenza in check.

Hospital Warning

Hospital heads were asked to refuse permission of casual visitors at their institutions as a means of safe-guarding persons with low vitality from contracting the disease.

In surrounding states many schools were closed and business operations reduced owing to the large number of cases. Similar steps had been taken in western states several days ago when the disease assumed alarming proportions.

The National Health service at Washington said its reports indicated the influenza spread was now centered in the midwest and warned that in its eastward movement it may sweep the nation. Kansas showed the largest increase in the number of cases officially reported to Washington for the week ending Dec. 8, of 21,238 new cases, 13,596 developed in Kansas, the reports showed.

Mrs. N. M. Ancleto has recovered from a recent attack of influenza and is again at her place of business, the Richmond Mendery.

and coffee, Jackson under the questioning of Chief Cox and Police Captain L. E. Jones admitted that he had become angry at Mrs. Howson and hit her with the hammer. He was unable to remember "anything after that" but said that it was probable he had slashed the woman's throat with a razor.

In statements made later to District Attorney Hiram E. Jacobs and sheriff's deputies, Jackson repeated the same statement and insisted that he did not remember the use of the razor. At no time since his arrest has Jackson discussed the case other than to answer questions which had been put to him regarding the case.

In case a life sentence is meted out Saturday morning Jackson will probably be sent to Folsom prison as this is his second offense. His previous term for manslaughter was spent in San Quentin.

Hoover Leaves Ship To Cross South America

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 11.—(U.P.)—Herbert Hoover left the Chilean capital for Buenos Aires at 9:30 p. m., after a two day visit here. The president-elect's party will travel on the trans-Andean train passing through the picturesque South American mountain area, straight across to the Argentine capital on the opposite side of the continent.

Hoover was made an honorary member of the Chilean Institute of Engineers at a reception held by the organization before he departed. The American president-elect spoke briefly and extemporaneously at the reception, pointing out the influence of engineering organizations in public life and said he hoped engineers could introduce characteristic exactitude into politics.

Hoover already has spoken at an official luncheon at noon.

PLANS FOR VET YULE PARTY MADE

Santa Claus is scheduled for two visits to the U. S. Veterans' Hospital at Livermore this year!

Under the direction of the Livermore veterans hospital Christmas committee, headed by Gregory W. Hinch, headquarters, 1307 Harrison street, Oakland, the "giver of gifts" will drive his reindeer to the door of the big "home of hope" in the Livermore foothills on Dec. 21, and again on Christmas day, Dec. 25.

Merrymakers will tax the capacity of Santa's sleigh on his visits, the sleigh being none other than the brand new and shiny motor bus just acquired by Col. Walker D. Judkins, medical officer in charge at the U. S. Veterans' hospital.

Program Planned
A galaxy of professional singing and dancing stars will present a program in the great recreation hall on the evening, Dec. 21 where all those under cure at the hospital who can be moved from their wards will gather. The great hall is to be decorated by wives of the officers in charge of the institution. L. B. Gross as Santa's entertainment assistant has the program in hand.

Among the entertainers will be Madame Carita's song and dance revue featuring Mable Lane; Joe Bobba and his novelty singers; Betty Kelly, "radio's sweetest singer" and Barney Lewis at the piano; Cerda Lundberg, radio star; Ruth Johnson, contralto, and others.

And then too, the "round, chubby-faced perennial youngster" will roll up to the hospital with his caravan of gifts for every brave man and woman undergoing treatment. And the gifts are those which each has wished for, and advance agents of Santa Claus, having made a careful check of the wants and needs of each "soldier," Mrs. Eugene K. Sturges heads the purchasing committee for Santa himself.

Music Featured
Oh yes, and there'll be entertainment too, and the cheer of music and song will be carried to every hospital cot and every ward in the big hospital.

Christmas cheer will also find its way to the homes of those non-compensated men and women who are undergoing care with Uncle Sam. The Livermore veterans' Christmas committee has seen to that, according to Chairman Vitalich. No one will be overlooked.

And all of this is being made possible by the generosity of individuals, civic, welfare, veteran and other organizations, who have generously forwarded checks to the committee," says Treasurer J. W. Garthwaite. "The fund is still below that of last year but we hope before Dec. 20th that other dollars will have come in to swell the 1928 Christmas fund."

Many Assist
Meanwhile headquarters at 1307 Harrison street are kept busy acknowledging contributions, sending letters to last year's givers who have not been heard from this year as yet. Mrs. J. M. Flotman, wife of an overseas veteran, has volunteered several days a week to assist in the clerical work at headquarters. "Then, too, preparations for wrapping and labeling each gift are being made by Mrs. J. W. Garthwaite in charge of wrapping and distribution. A large room in Alameda county's fine new Veterans' Memorial building just off Grand Avenue at the northern end of Lake Merritt has been secured through the American Legion as wrapping headquarters."

In the purchase of the gifts Oakland stores have been generously co-operating. Some of them even have gone so far as to allow most liberal discounts on the gifts purchased.

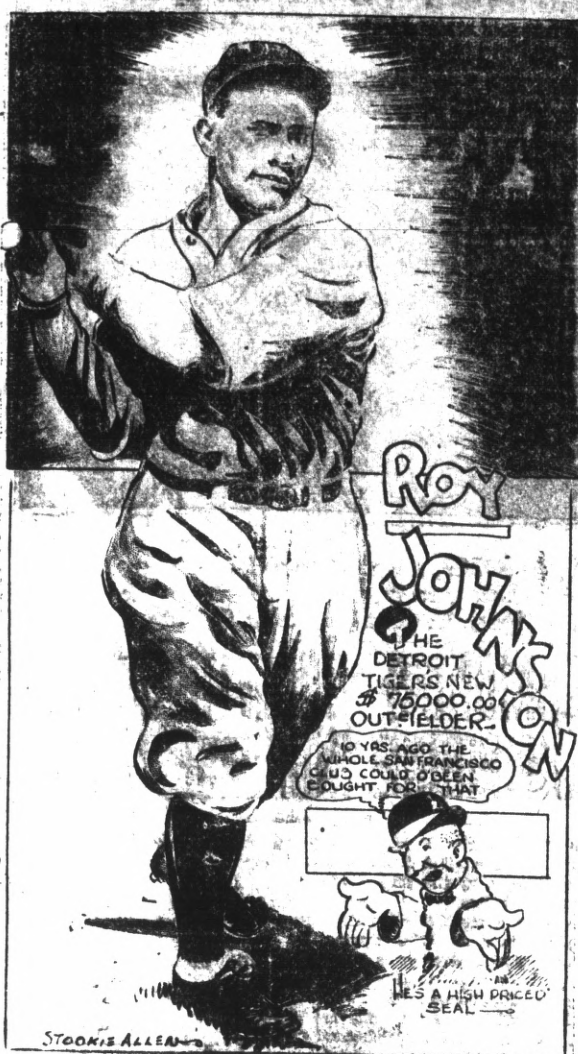

Berkeley chapter of the Red Cross has donated a large truck for the transportation of the gifts. Oakland schools are providing nut cups and favors for the veterans on Christmas day.

A unique and jolly feature of Christmas day at the Veterans' hospital will be the Grab Bag event in charge of Mrs. M. P. Murray, who has completed her purchase of surprise gifts for each and every veteran at the hospital.

Duck Hunters Get Good Bags

Fire Chief In

Warnings On Yuletide Fires

lar substances renders holiday greens extremely inflammable. DO NOT use cotton to represent snow, asbestos fibre or powdered mica is a good substitute.

FIREPROOFING FORMULA
New fabrics (linen, muslin, etc.) are easily fireproofed by moistening with the following solution:
Boric acid 50 grams (6 2/3 oz.)
Borax (crystallized sodium borate) 60 grams (8 oz.)
Water 1000 grams (1 gal.)
The fabric well saturated with liquid, is drained and then hung up until completely dry. One should avoid by all means washing them.

The same process of fireproofing can be used for paper streamers, paper flowers, grass, etc., used for decorating halls, provided, however, that the paper is not too heavily sized and can absorb the liquid. DO NOT use candles. The records will show that many lives are lost because of their use. Electric lighting systems properly installed, avoid this danger.

DO NOT permit any sort of decorations near gas jets, and care should be exercised to prevent incandescent lamps from coming in contact with either natural or artificial leaves, paper ornaments, streamers, or other inflammable materials. DO NOT allow trees to remain inside of buildings after Christmas. The tree itself ignites readily when the needles have become dry.

A RICHMOND FORECAST

The business district has begun to spread from Sixth to Sixteenth Streets and from Chanslor to Barrett Avenues. We have every evidence of this fact before our eyes. Why the substantial Kress Building on Macdonald Avenue? Why the proposed Montgomery Ward Building on Ninth and Nevins? Are they for the trade of today, or tomorrow? Think this over and decide to own a piece of property within this district.

AUTO PLATES DELIVERED SATURDAY

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 11.—County clerks of 1929 automobiles will deliver plates on Saturday, Dec. 15, at Sacramento, all branch offices of the Division of Motor Vehicles and branches of the various automobile clubs of California, Saturday morning.

Plates may be secured at these places upon payment of the amount of the registration fee and presentation of the certificate of registration.

Branches of the division are located at Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Diego, Fresno, San Francisco and Oakland. The automobile clubs will serve their members and have branches in practically every town and city in the state.

Added force. A big force of registration clerks will be on hand at the branches of the motor vehicle division to handle the rush because of the radical departure from the past system of numbering there is unusual interest all over the state in the new back and orange plates.

The opening of the counters will release automatically thousands of pairs of plates into the mail applied for via the mail order route by the motorists. Mail applications have been pouring into the Sacramento office for weeks and practically all such orders will be ready for shipment.

Mail field easiest. The mail order method is regarded by the division as much the simplest way to secure the new plates inasmuch as it relieves the car owner of the necessity of making a special trip to a branch office and of standing in line for long periods.

All that is necessary is to enclose the white certificate of registration (marked with the proper address if it was changed during the year) and the amount of the fee in an envelope and mail them to the Division of Motor Vehicles at Sacramento. If the legal ownership of the car has changed hands during the year, as in the case where payments have been completed, the pink certificate of ownership and an additional $1 should be forwarded so that the legal transfer can be made. Car owners should see to it that the person from whom the car was purchased has signed the second line on the back of the pink certificate.

HEIR'S ARRIVAL CHEERS SICK RULER

Arrives In Rush

The prince had been at the palace exactly an hour. He arrived in a beautiful, low closed car that suddenly swerved from the regular traffic on Buckingham palace road and raced into the eastern front gate before the few hundred persons there could realize he had arrived.

In a blinding glare of headlights, the machine shot up to the entrance of the palace and came to a grinding halt. The prince had leaped from the car and started hurriedly toward the entrance before the crowd could even doff their hats. He was greeted by Sir Derek Keppel, master of the household, and then went immediately to the room of his mother, Queen Mary.

Optimistic Attitude

The crowd of approximately 400 persons at the left front gate of the palace, where the prince entered and the thousands of others which packed the entire district around the palace, assumed a somewhat more optimistic attitude after the prince entered the palace.

There was no cheering at the palace, but all were attempting to catch even a fleeting glance of the heir. The dramatic qualities of his meeting with the queen could easily be imagined by those who had seen the prince's tired face.

The prince's route to the palace did not follow the streets where the crowd had gathered in expectation of seeing him. Owing to road repair the automobile took a less direct route and was seen by only a comparatively small number of persons.

Crowds Increase

Within a few minutes after the arrival at the palace, the crowd was swelled by several thousand persons who came rushing down Buckingham road from Victoria station in a maze of taxicabs and private motors.

Pedestrians jammed the streets and overflowed the Victoria memorial. The crowd was plainly relieved, almost cheerful.

The crowd surged forward as the prince arrived, women waving handkerchiefs. The arrival and the sudden that many of them did not know it was the prince.

Guard Approached

One old woman approached a guard and cried: "Please, was that the prince?" The guard gently pushed her and others back.

"Keep back! keep back!" he said.

Tears came into the woman's eyes and she replied: "Don't push me. Please tell me if that was the prince."

The guard said he did not know and continued his efforts to hold the crowd back.

No Barriades

There were no barriades at the gates and only two policemen were present when the prince arrived. The crowd maintained good order, talking in low tones.

A battalion of photographers was stationed around the palace and their flashlight guns boomed loudly as the prince arrived. A number of the crowd thought the noise was a salute in honor of the prince.

A spokesman at Buckingham palace told the United Press at 11:10 p. m. that the king's condition "is unchanged."

"You may rest assured," he said, "that we will immediately make public any important change in the king's condition."

Suspects Held In Looting Of Giant Postoffice

MARTINEZ, Dec. 11.—With the arrest at Berkeley this morning of three men and a woman Contra Costa county authorities believe that they have solved the robbery of the Giant postoffice and the theft of hogs from a Brentwood ranch.

Those in custody and who will be turned over to the Contra Costa authorities are: Mrs. Mary Schnatmeyer, Manuel George, Joe Braggi and Serafine Pine. They were arrested by Deputy Sheriffs J. S. Neilson and Ralph Harrison and Berkeley police.

The woman, it is said, was with the men when the thefts were made from a Brentwood ranch on two occasions. BALLOT TROPHY AWARDED TO RAMONA

With a voting percentage of 88.6 believed to be a national record, the city of Ramona, in San Diego county, has won for the third successive time, the Better Citizenship cup of the California Development association.

This announcement was made by William May Garland, president of the California Development association, at a meeting of the statewide board of directors in Los Angeles.

The cup will be presented to Ramona with suitable ceremony.

Permanent Cup

By winning the cup for the third time, Ramona now retains permanent possession of the silver trophy. Ramona's percentage of registered voters voting this year is even higher than her percentage of 88.5 in 1926, also a national record.

The city of Atascadero, in San Luis Obispo county, was second with 95.6, Patterson, Stanislaus county was third with 94.7 and Palo Alto, San Mateo county, fourth with 92.21 each of these high percentages setting new marks.

Many Aided

Garland's report shows that a keen community interest was aroused by the Better Citizenship contest. The Chambers of Commerce and other organizations throughout the state threw their entire strength into getting the voters to the polls. A house to house canvass and telephone calls were made to insure a large vote turnout in leading communities, and in others, special transportation committees were formed to take the voters to the polls.

In Atascadero, one of the most effective agents was the local Bridge Club which assigned each member a definite job of getting ten voters to the polls.

Recommendations that a new cup be provided for the general election of 1930, were made by the publicity committee.

Official figures of California, voting standing among other states will not be ready until January, but it is expected that the record turnout throughout the state will materially increase California's position over 21st place which it held in 1924. With a few exceptions, every community in the state showed a voting turnout of 80 per cent or better.
